

I think it is the responsibility of the Minister to assist the larger community in understanding our liberal faith tradition as Unitarian Universalists, and in interpreting the culture through the lens of liberal theology. Thus, I have taught and/or prepared public lectures in various public middle and high schools, as well as Calvin Theological Seminary, Aquinas College of Grand Rapids, The University of Tulsa Law School, Tulsa Community College, Concordia College of Milwaukee, Hanover College, as well as our own Meadville Lombard and Starr King. Here is a list of classes taught and lectures delivered in the larger communities wherein my congregations have been located:

Congregational Polity in the Free Church Tradition
The Doctrine of the Church in the Unitarian Universalist Tradition
Covenant, Collegiality, and Congregationalism
Religion and Public Education
Religion and Evolution
Religion and Democracy
Religious Institutions, Change, and Accountability
Abraham Lincoln and Covenant
Sexuality and the Church
Modern Jesus Research
Feminism and Language
Pragmatism
Paul Tillich and the Theology of "The Twilight Zone"
Preaching
Rites of Passage
William Ellery Channing
Thomas Jefferson and John Adams
Worship, Music, and Children
Bible

As part of my teaching, I have also used radio and television to teach, and helped to create and host local and national television broadcasts during my tenure at All Souls Unitarian Church in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and Fountain Street Church in Grand Rapids, Michigan (independent).

I have been interviewed and/or participated on panel discussions on both television and radio on such topics as evolution, the concept of the Sabbath, gay and lesbian rights, anti-Semitism, abortion rights, separation of church and state, the political effect of the Religious Right, and other issues
